She belonged to the National Honor Society and finished at the top of her class.

Well, they began to court. (That's what people did back then. It's not heard of much anymore. Back then, you heard it a lot. You would hear sayings like, "I see him going by the house a lot, they must be courting." Or, "They are doing a lot of heavy courting." Or, "He sure has been courting her a long time." That kind of thing.

Well, Emma and Donald Leemon were courting and they would get together at her house and listen to records. She had a lot of records and he didn't believe a one was ever played on the Grand Ole Opry, so he had not heard them. He remembered she had one that was very popular at the time by Patti Page called "How Much is that Doggie in the Window?"

Now, he liked that song. He knew a lot about buying and selling animals. His family had sold chickens, hogs, and even traded a dog for the first radio they ever owned. However, they quit selling chickens because they kept

Well, he could go down and talk with them but that was not easy. There was nothing but two-lane roads and it took six to eight hours normally—and this was Mid-February.

The trips then were interesting. You would start out on any of the two-lane roads and everyone out there would start to pass each other as fast and often as they could. It was like there was some kind of penalty or disgrace if you were behind.

The trips were quite expensive. The gas was $0.20 to $0.25 a gallon, depending on what OPEC was doing at the time.

Well, Donald Leemon wrote a letter and waited for permission to marry. When it finally came, he and Emma went for blood tests. They both had some, so that was OK.

It finally came time to marry and the night before, they went for a rehearsal. Donald Leemon often wondered why they did this because there was just them and the witnesses and all they were going to do was have a few words said, and do a few of those follow-after-me things that you do at weddings.

The Wedding Story

February 2004

Once upon a time, Donald Leemon grew up in a very rural Kentucky farmland.

One day, when he was somewhat grown up, he stopped by his brother Eldon's house and told him that he was going to Cincinnati to see if he could get a job.

Eldon said, "I should go with you. I am not making any money on this farm and we are expecting a child that is already kicking and wanting to see daylight."

Well, they did that. They headed for the city and when they arrived, they found a small furnished apartment, then they went to the grocery.

Donald Leemon made a deal – he would cook if Eldon would do the dishes. That was OK with him. (Donald Leemon is still making deals like that today!!)

They found jobs and went to work. They made friends with some of the people at work. Donald Leemon met a boy name Jack Warnock who enjoyed some of the same things he enjoyed: mainly, chasing girls!

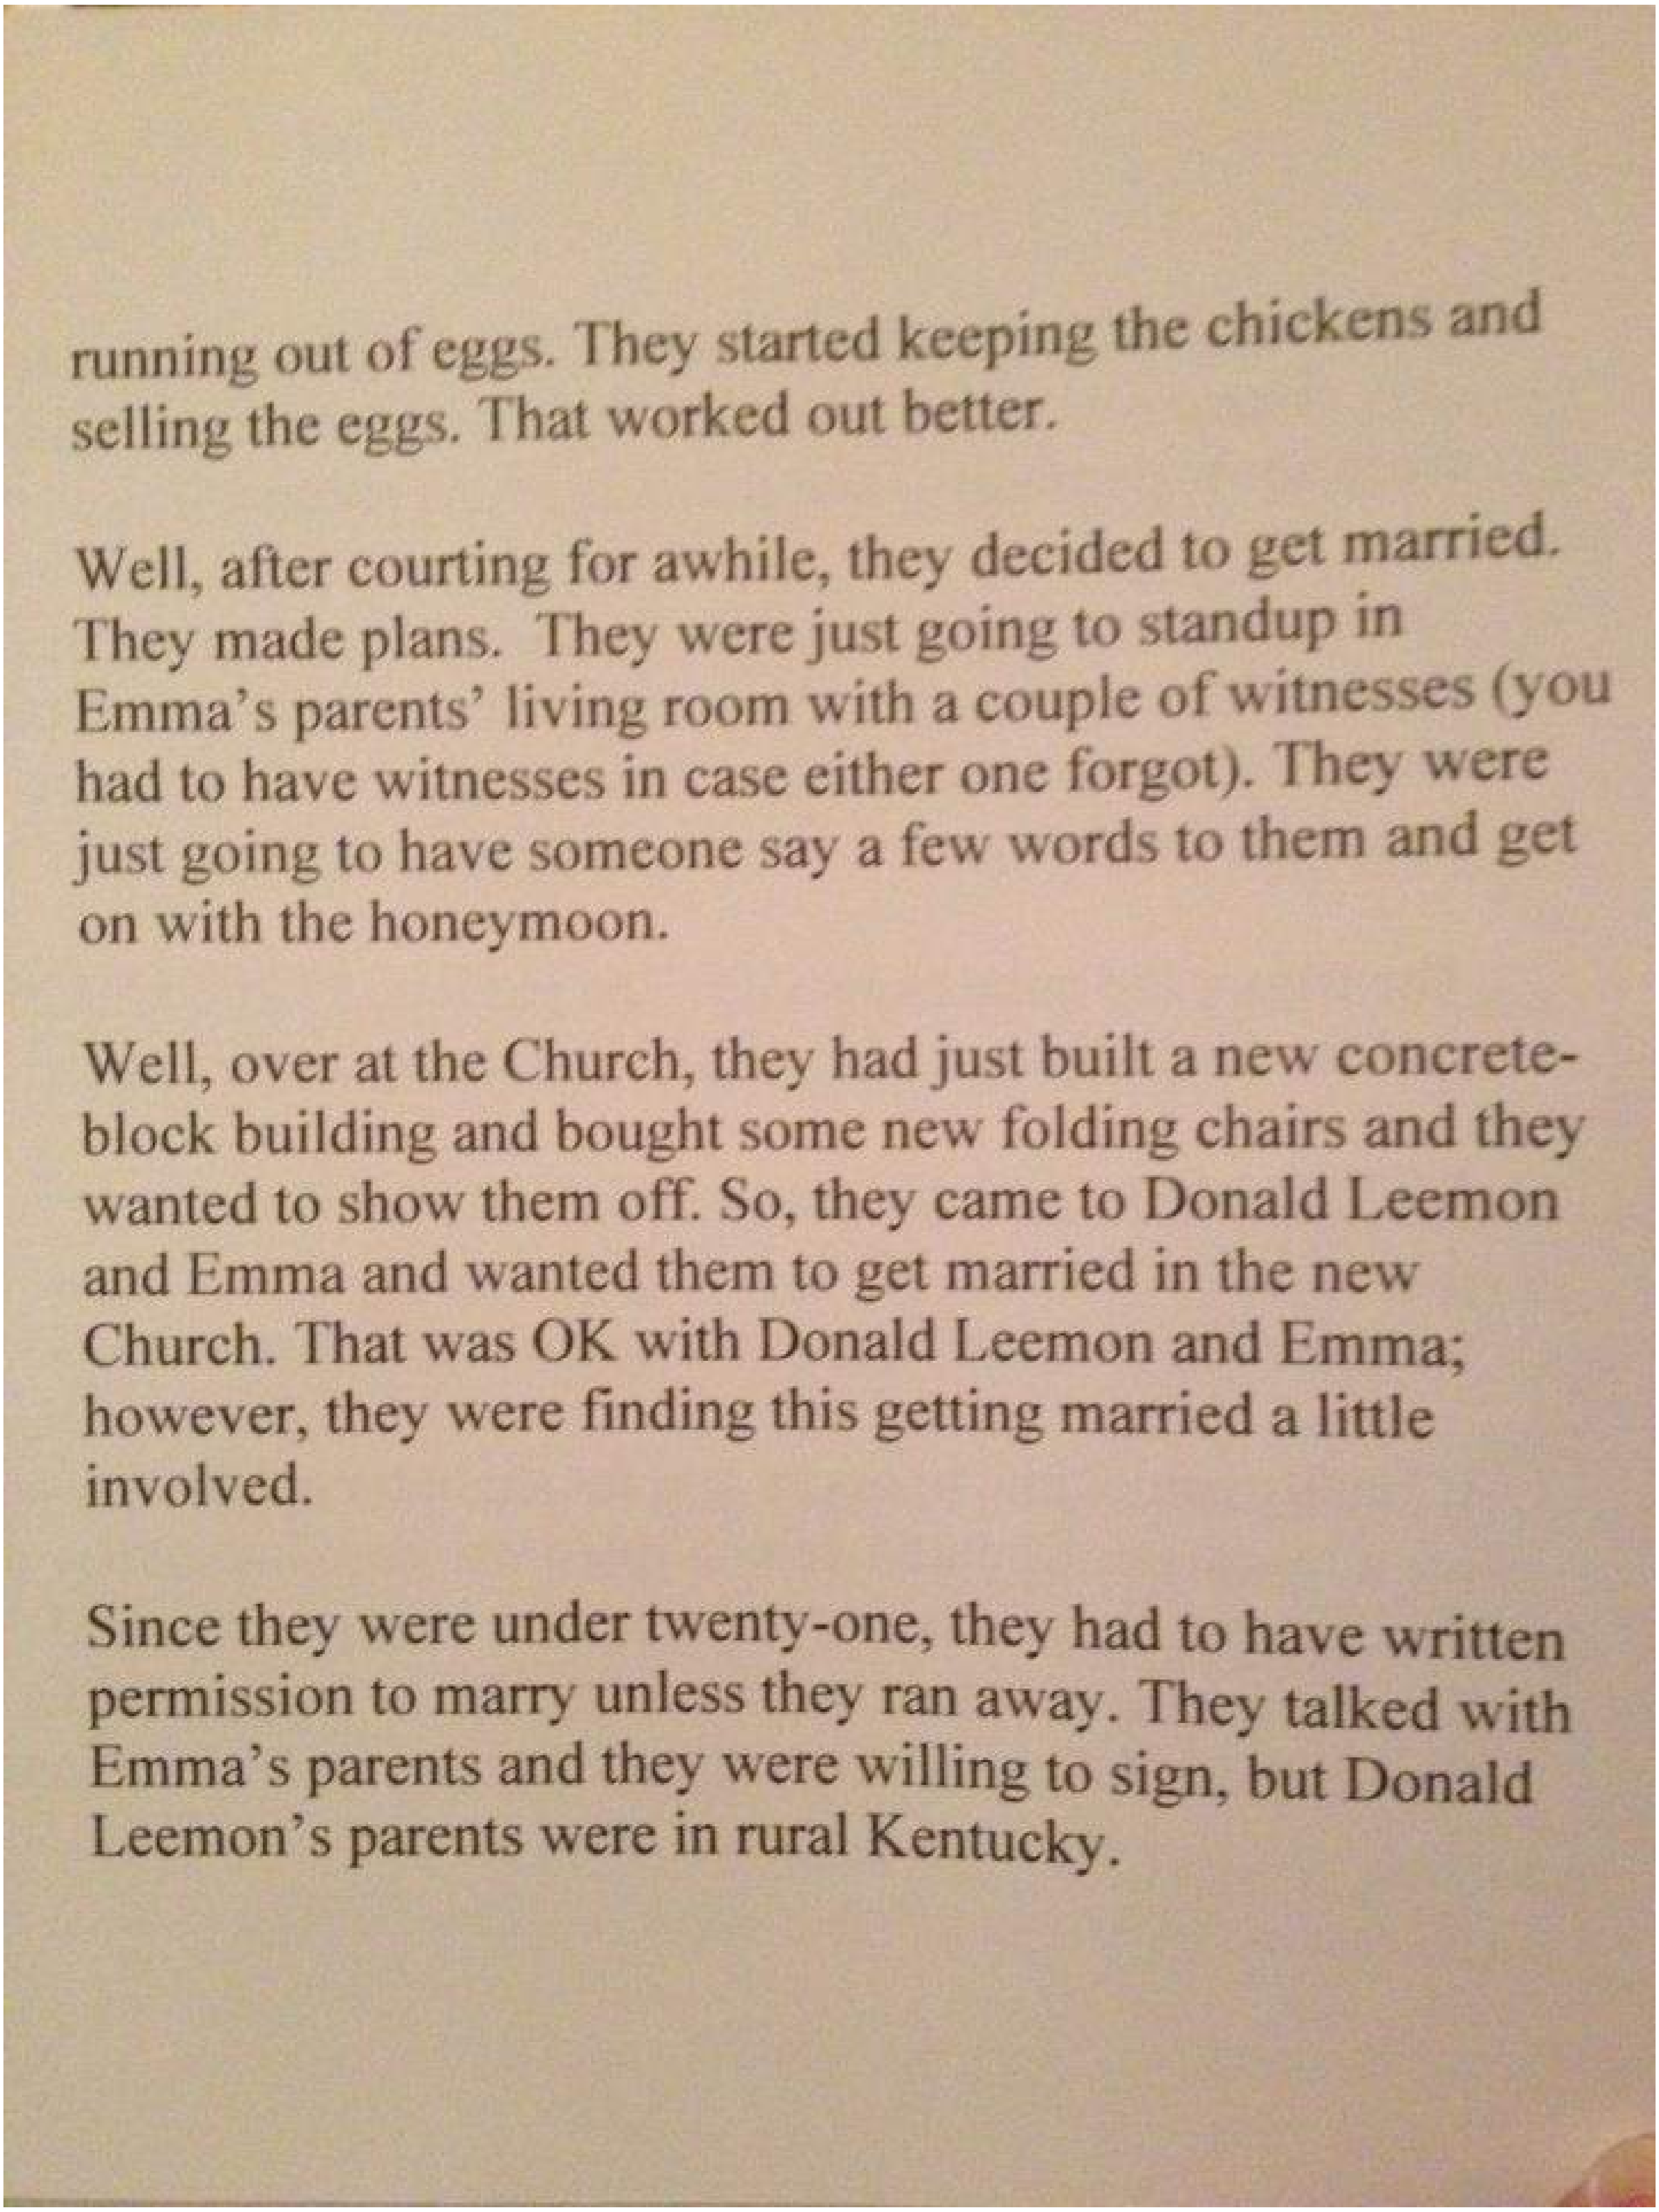
He like girls! He always liked girls! Even when most boys stuck out their tongues and made ugly faces, he liked girls!

Well, after a few weeks went by, Eldon had saved up enough money to get an apartment of his own and set up housekeeping. He went and got his family.

Well now, what was Donald Leemon to do?

He had been spending so much time at Jack's house, chasing girls, that Jack's mom suggested that he take the spare bedroom at their house. She would cook and clean up. What a deal! Donald Leemon did that and life went on.

After some time went by, Donald Leemon met a young lady by the name of Emogene L. Alexander. He thought she was the prettiest thing he had ever seen and she was smart, also.



running out of eggs. They started keeping the chickens and selling the eggs. That worked out better.

Well, after courting for awhile, they decided to get married. They made plans. They were just going to standup in Emma's parents' living room with a couple of witnesses (you had to have witnesses in case either one forgot). They were just going to have someone say a few words to them and get on with the honeymoon.

Well, over at the Church, they had just built a new concrete-block building and bought some new folding chairs and they wanted to show them off. So, they came to Donald Leemon and Emma and wanted them to get married in the new Church. That was OK with Donald Leemon and Emma; however, they were finding this getting married a little involved.

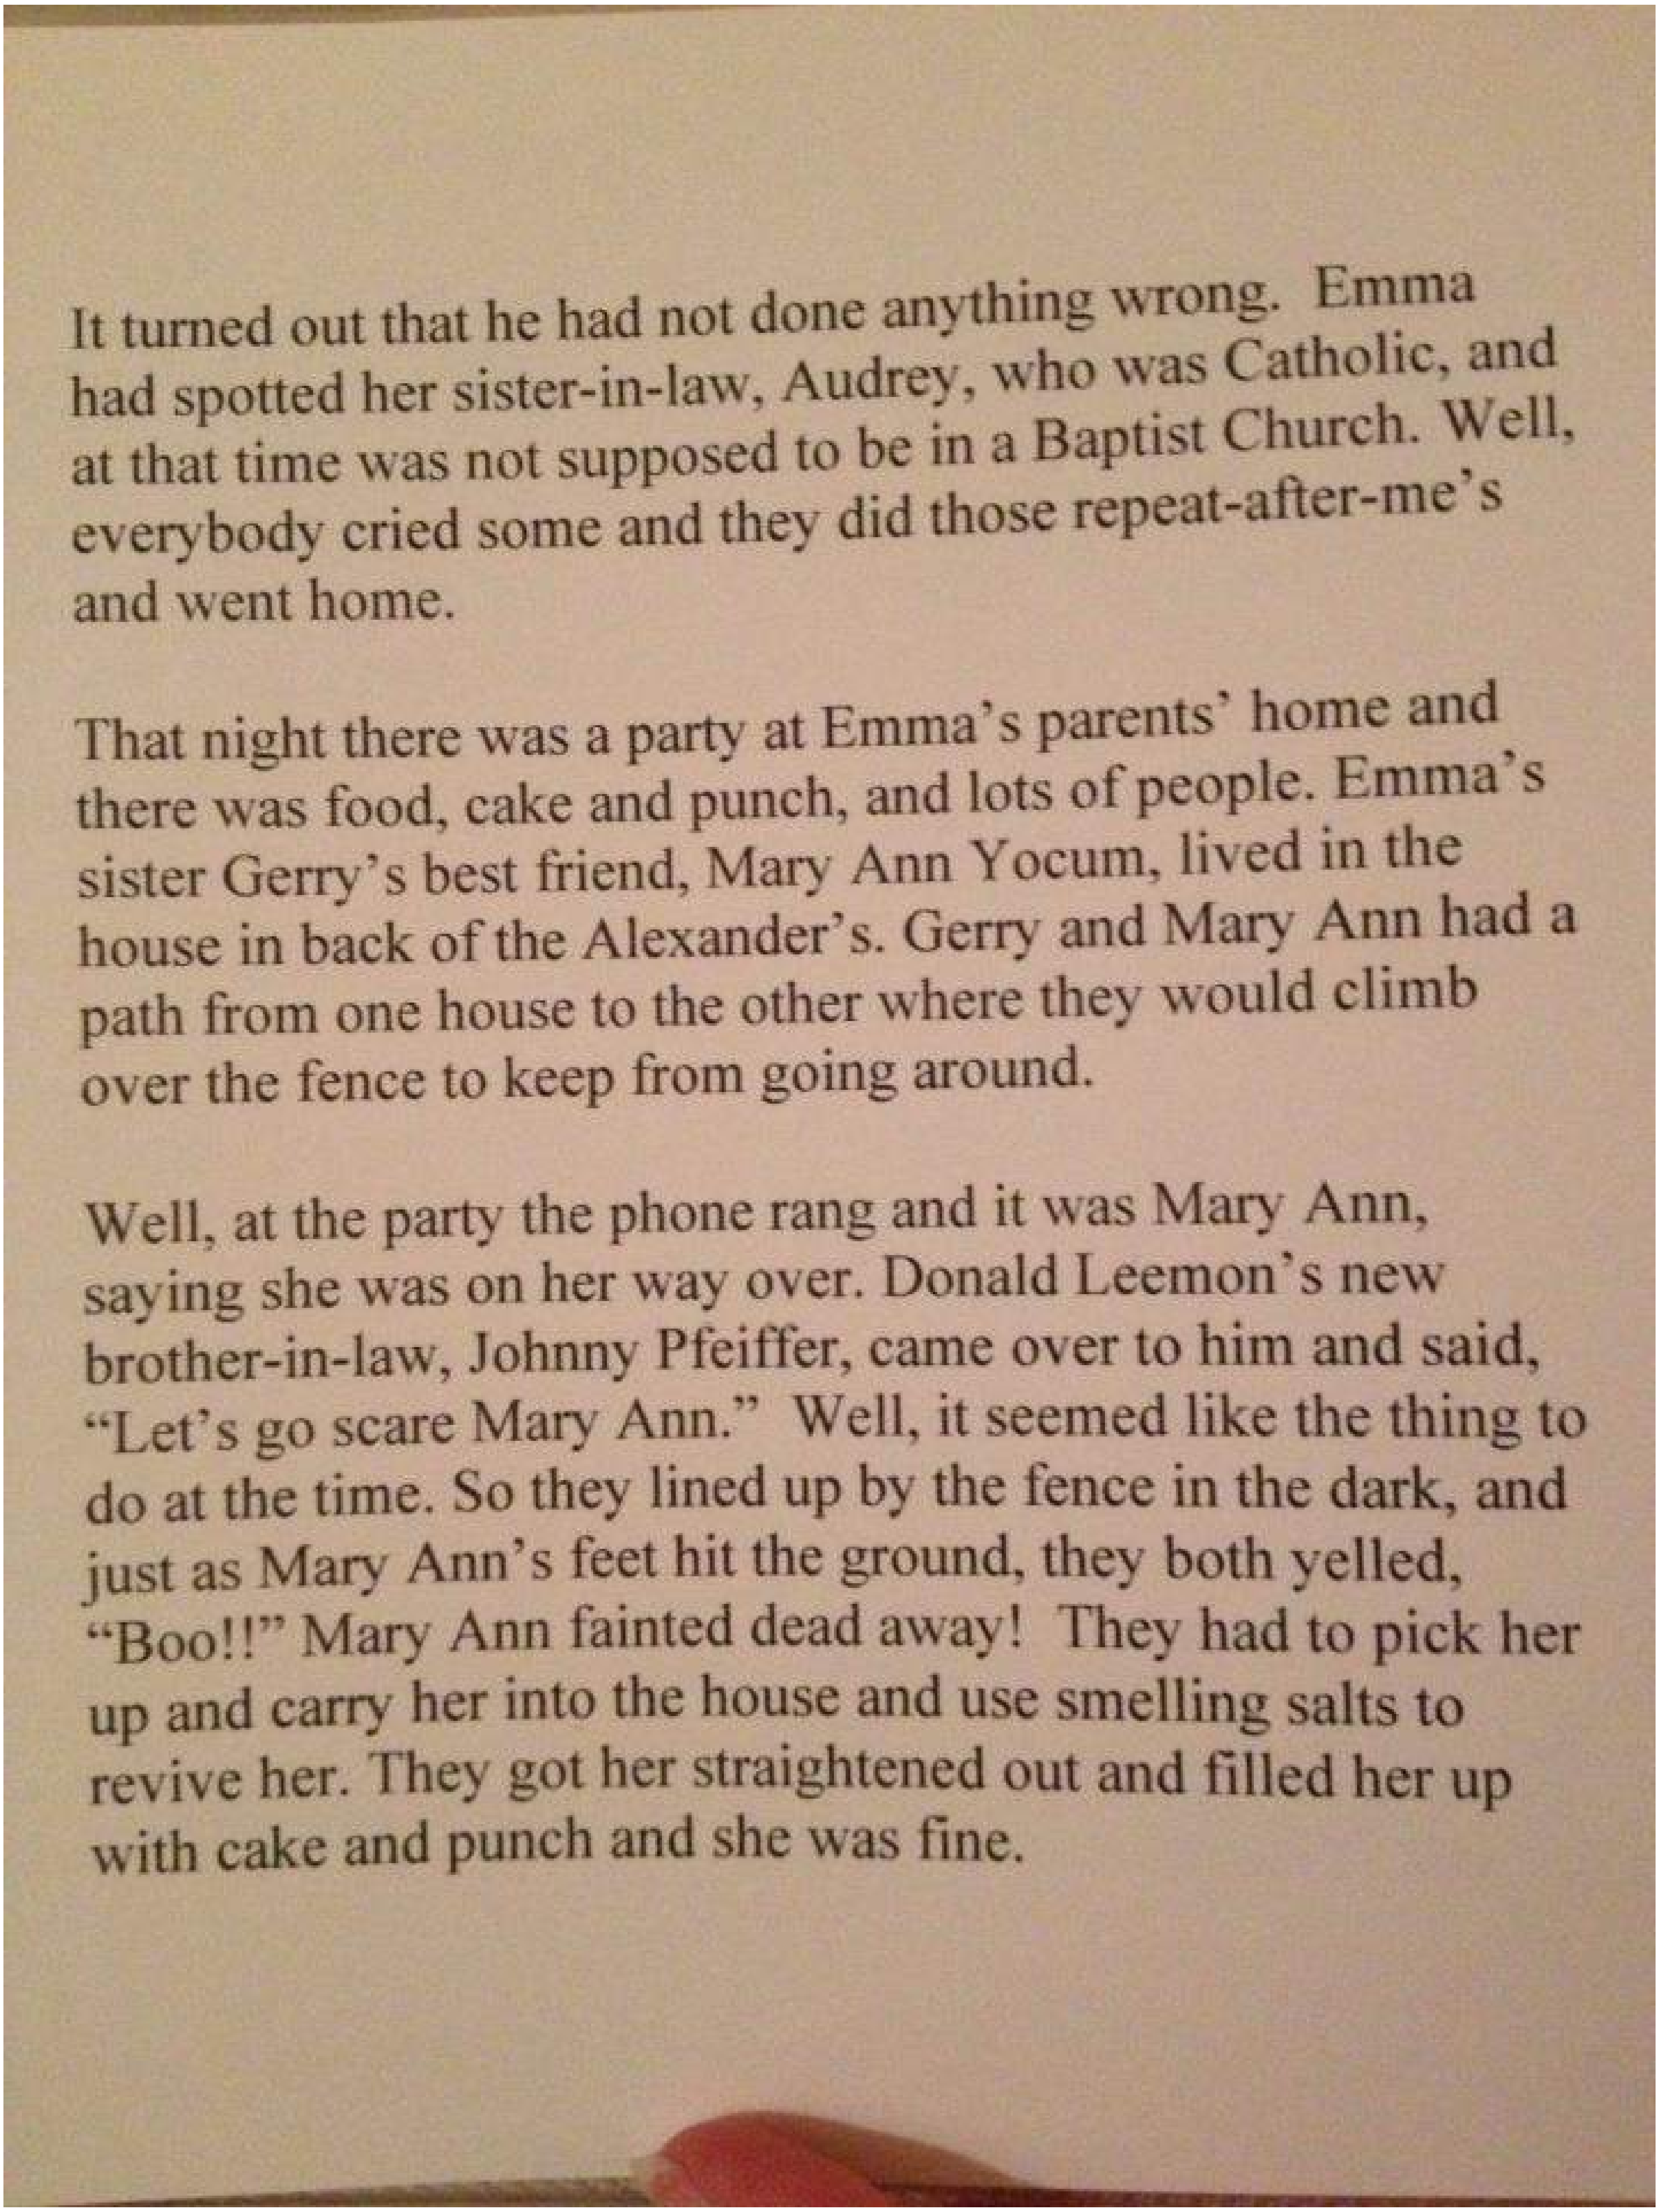
Since they were under twenty-one, they had to have written permission to marry unless they ran away. They talked with Emma's parents and they were willing to sign, but Donald Leemon's parents were in rural Kentucky.

Upon arriving at the Church for the rehearsal, the Pastor greeted them with the Cincinnati Post in his hand and stated that he was not going to be able to marry them. They thought, "Now what has happened?! Was there something wrong with the blood tests? Were the signatures not any good, or what?" So the Pastor opened up the paper and showed them the announcement. It listed Donald Leemon as being age thirteen. He said he could not marry a thirteen year old child.

Well, they convinced the Pastor it was an error and he went ahead with the rehearsal of repeat-after-me's.

The next day, they got to the Church, and people started to come in. They all brought presents wrapped in pretty paper. There were lots of people. Donald Leemon remembers one of the presents to this day. It was a pretty dish that set in a gold rack and had a little, stubby candle under it that you could light and cook stuff. He had heard of pheasant under glass, but didn't believe you could have ever cooked anything with that little, stubby candle!

Suddenly, Emma looked out over the crowd and began to cry loudly, and Donald Leemon didn't know what he had done.



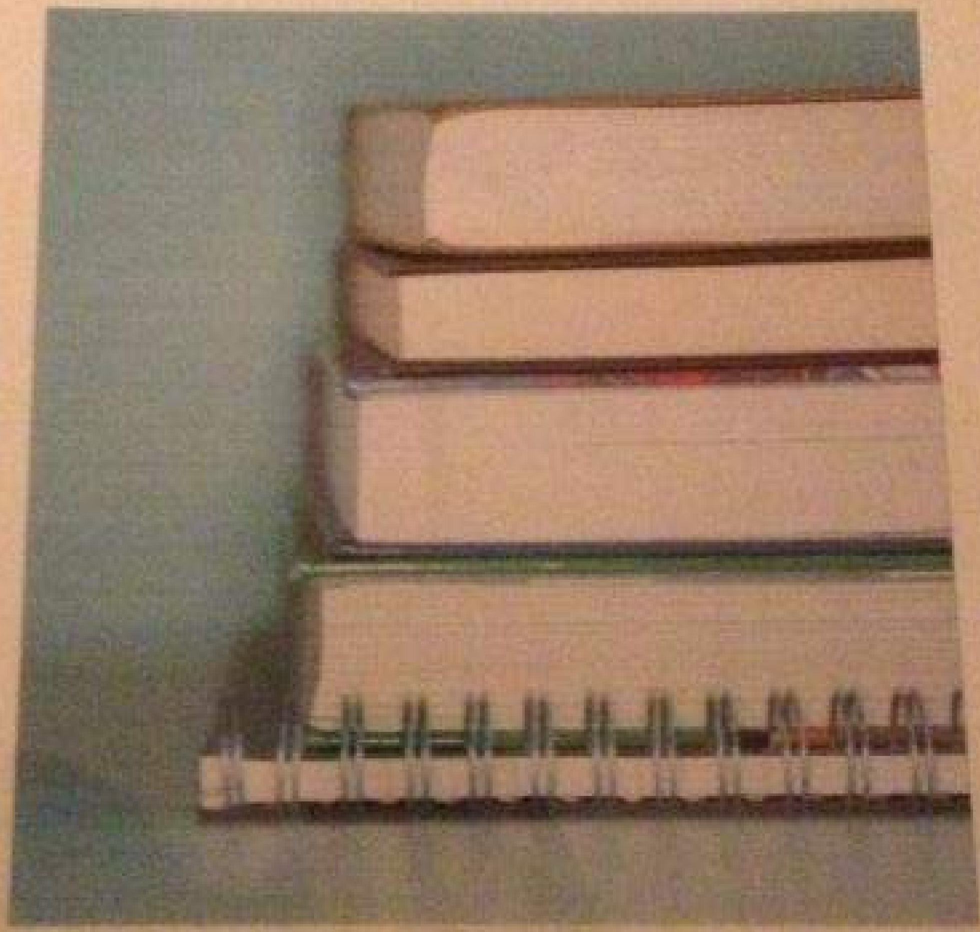
It turned out that he had not done anything wrong. Emma had spotted her sister-in-law, Audrey, who was Catholic, and at that time was not supposed to be in a Baptist Church. Well, everybody cried some and they did those repeat-after-me's and went home.

That night there was a party at Emma's parents' home and there was food, cake and punch, and lots of people. Emma's sister Gerry's best friend, Mary Ann Yocum, lived in the house in back of the Alexander's. Gerry and Mary Ann had a path from one house to the other where they would climb over the fence to keep from going around.

Well, at the party the phone rang and it was Mary Ann, saying she was on her way over. Donald Leemon's new brother-in-law, Johnny Pfeiffer, came over to him and said, "Let's go scare Mary Ann." Well, it seemed like the thing to do at the time. So they lined up by the fence in the dark, and just as Mary Ann's feet hit the ground, they both yelled, "Boo!!" Mary Ann fainted dead away! They had to pick her up and carry her into the house and use smelling salts to revive her. They got her straightened out and filled her up with cake and punch and she was fine.

Compilation of Stories

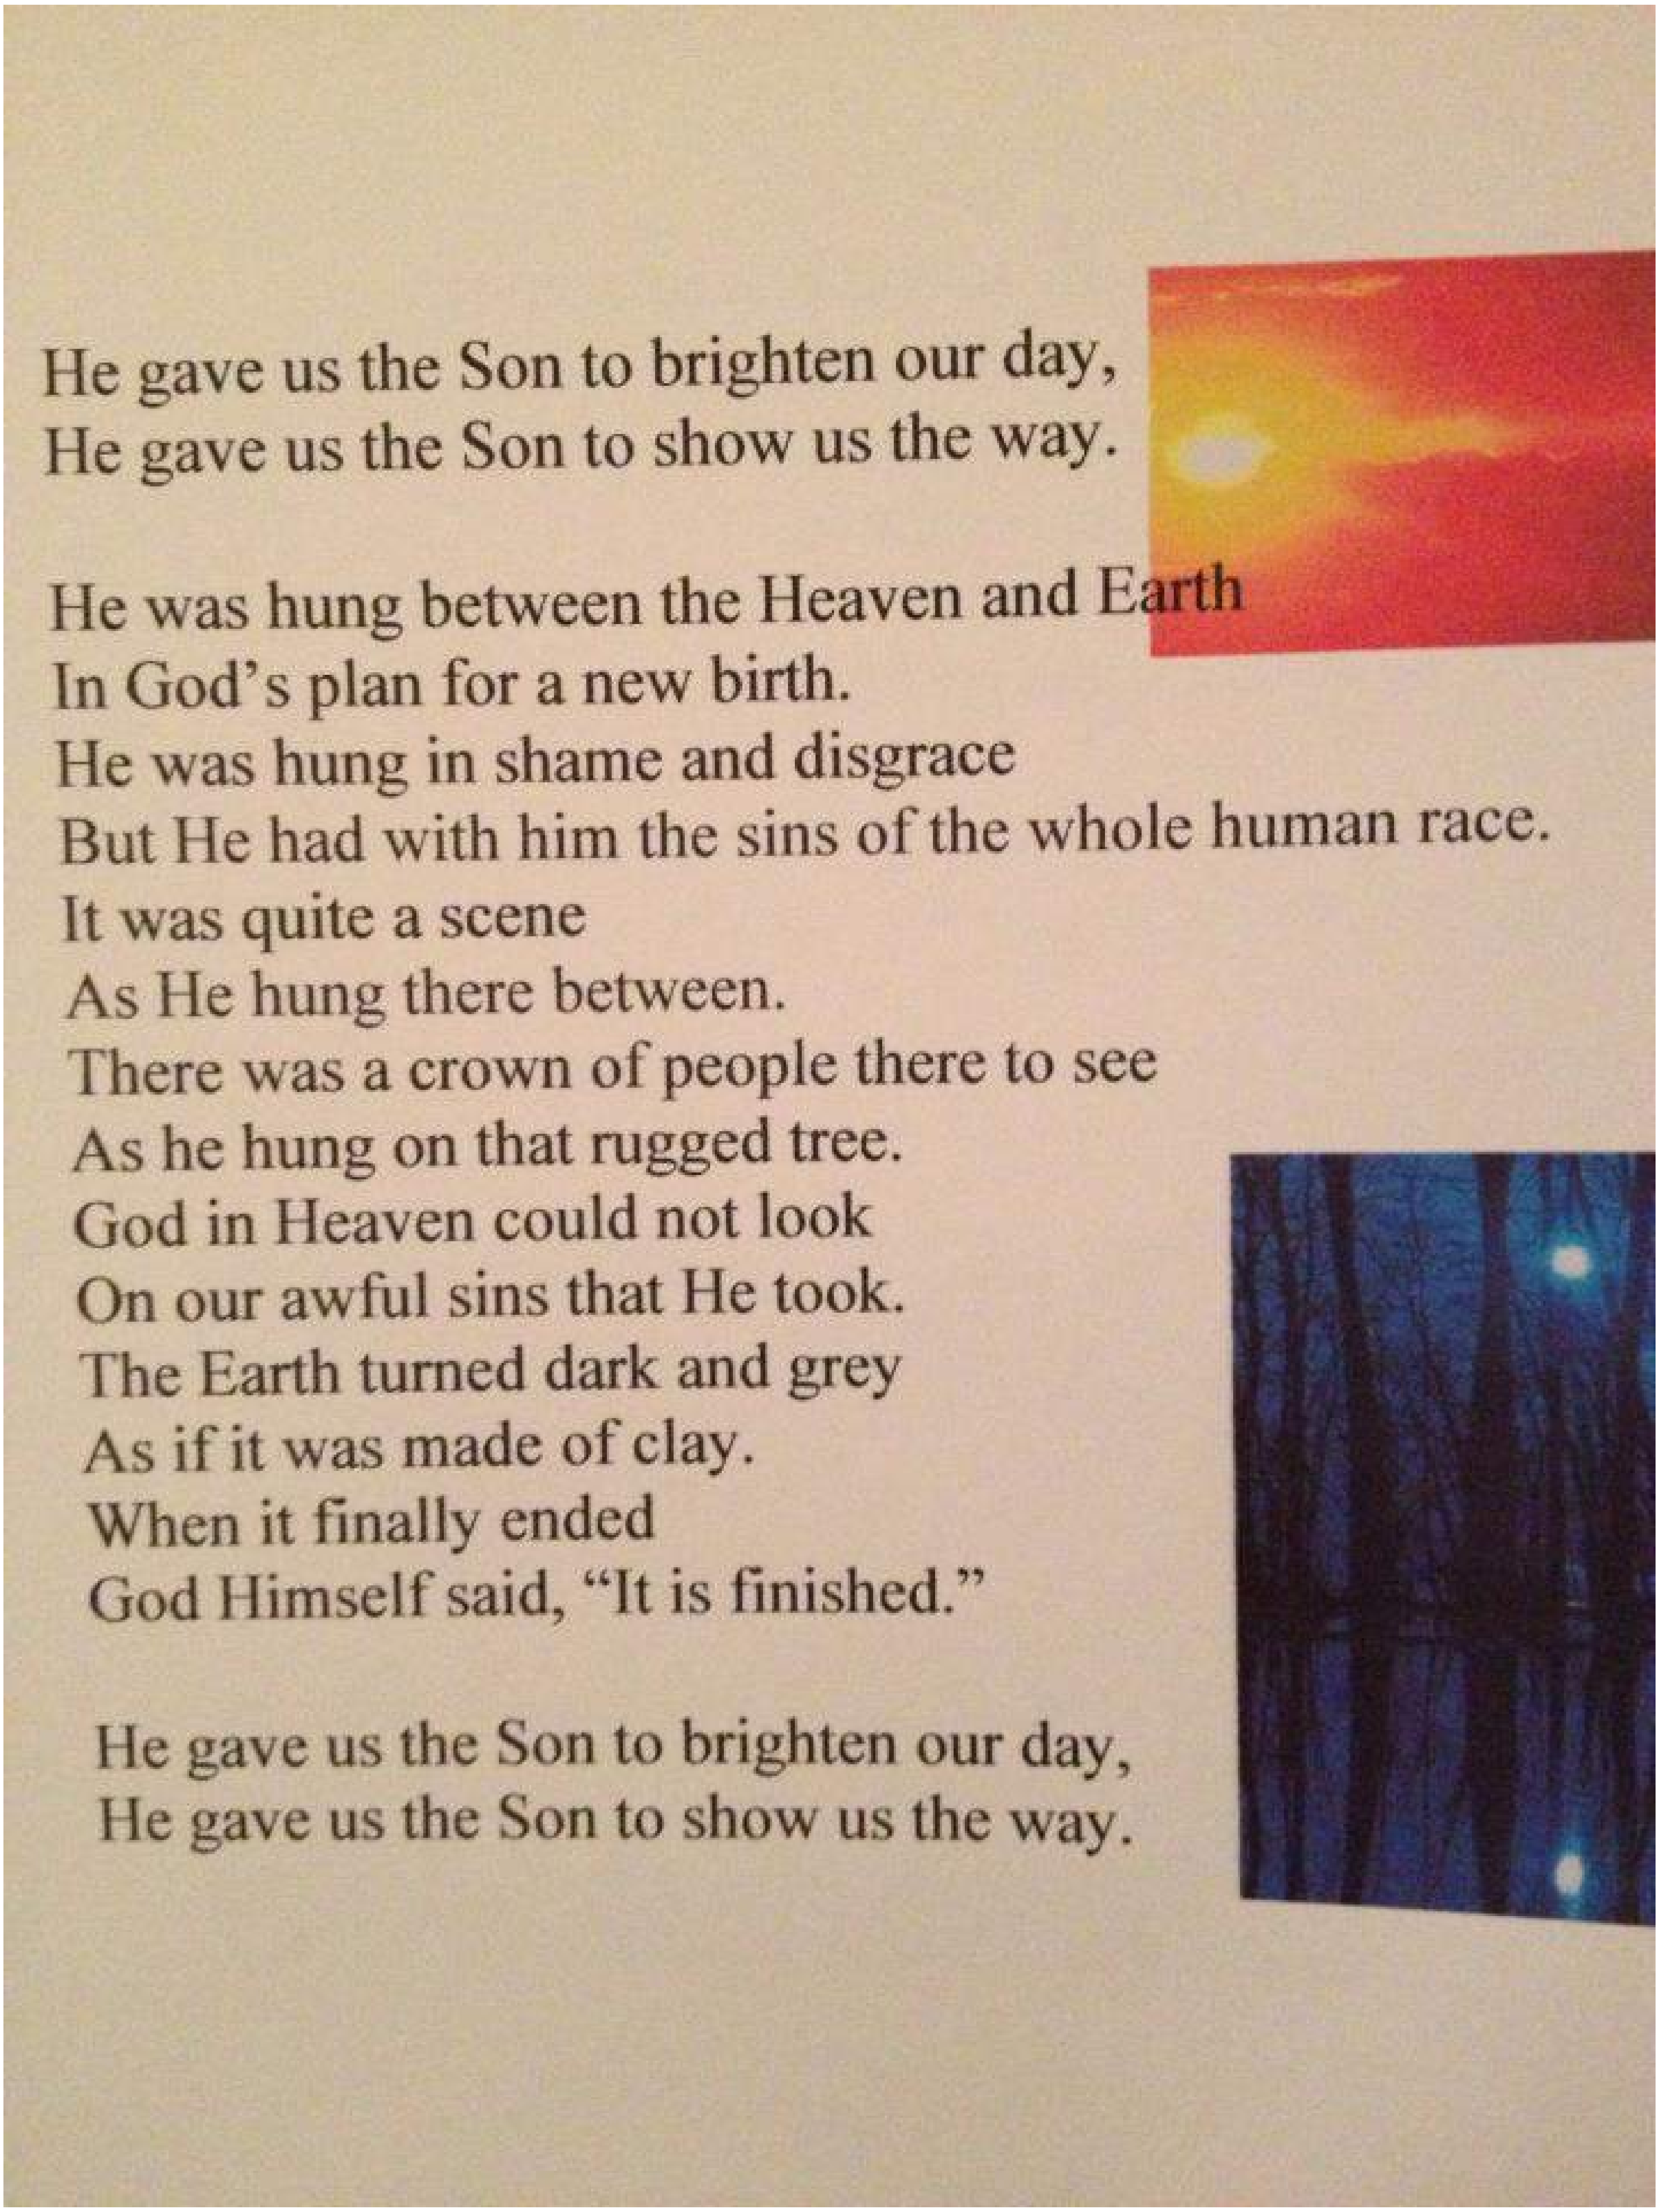
By Donald Leemon Jones



They wrapped Him up and placed a stone
And left Him there, all alone.
Some believed it had ended,
But it was only the beginning!
The Son of Man who had done it
Was not alone when He begun it.

He gave us the Son to brighten our day,
He gave us the Son to show us the way.

He gave us the Son to show us the way.



He gave us the Son to brighten our day,
He gave us the Son to show us the way.

He was hung between the Heaven and Earth
In God's plan for a new birth.
He was hung in shame and disgrace
But He had with him the sins of the whole human race.
It was quite a scene
As He hung there between.
There was a crown of people there to see
As he hung on that rugged tree.
God in Heaven could not look
On our awful sins that He took.
The Earth turned dark and grey
As if it was made of clay.
When it finally ended
God Himself said, "It is finished."

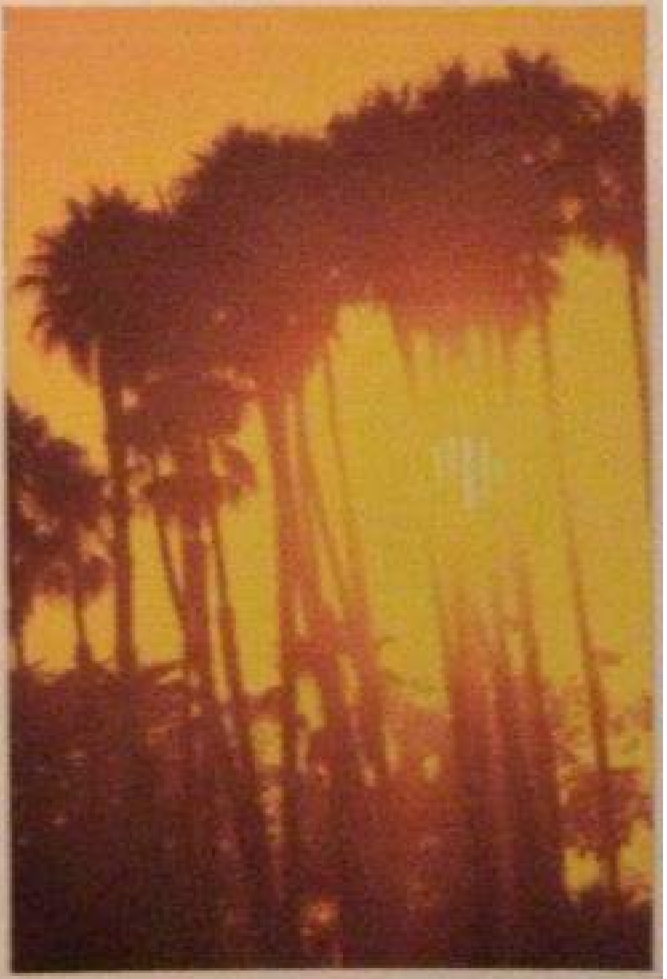
He gave us the Son to brighten our day,
He gave us the Son to show us the way.

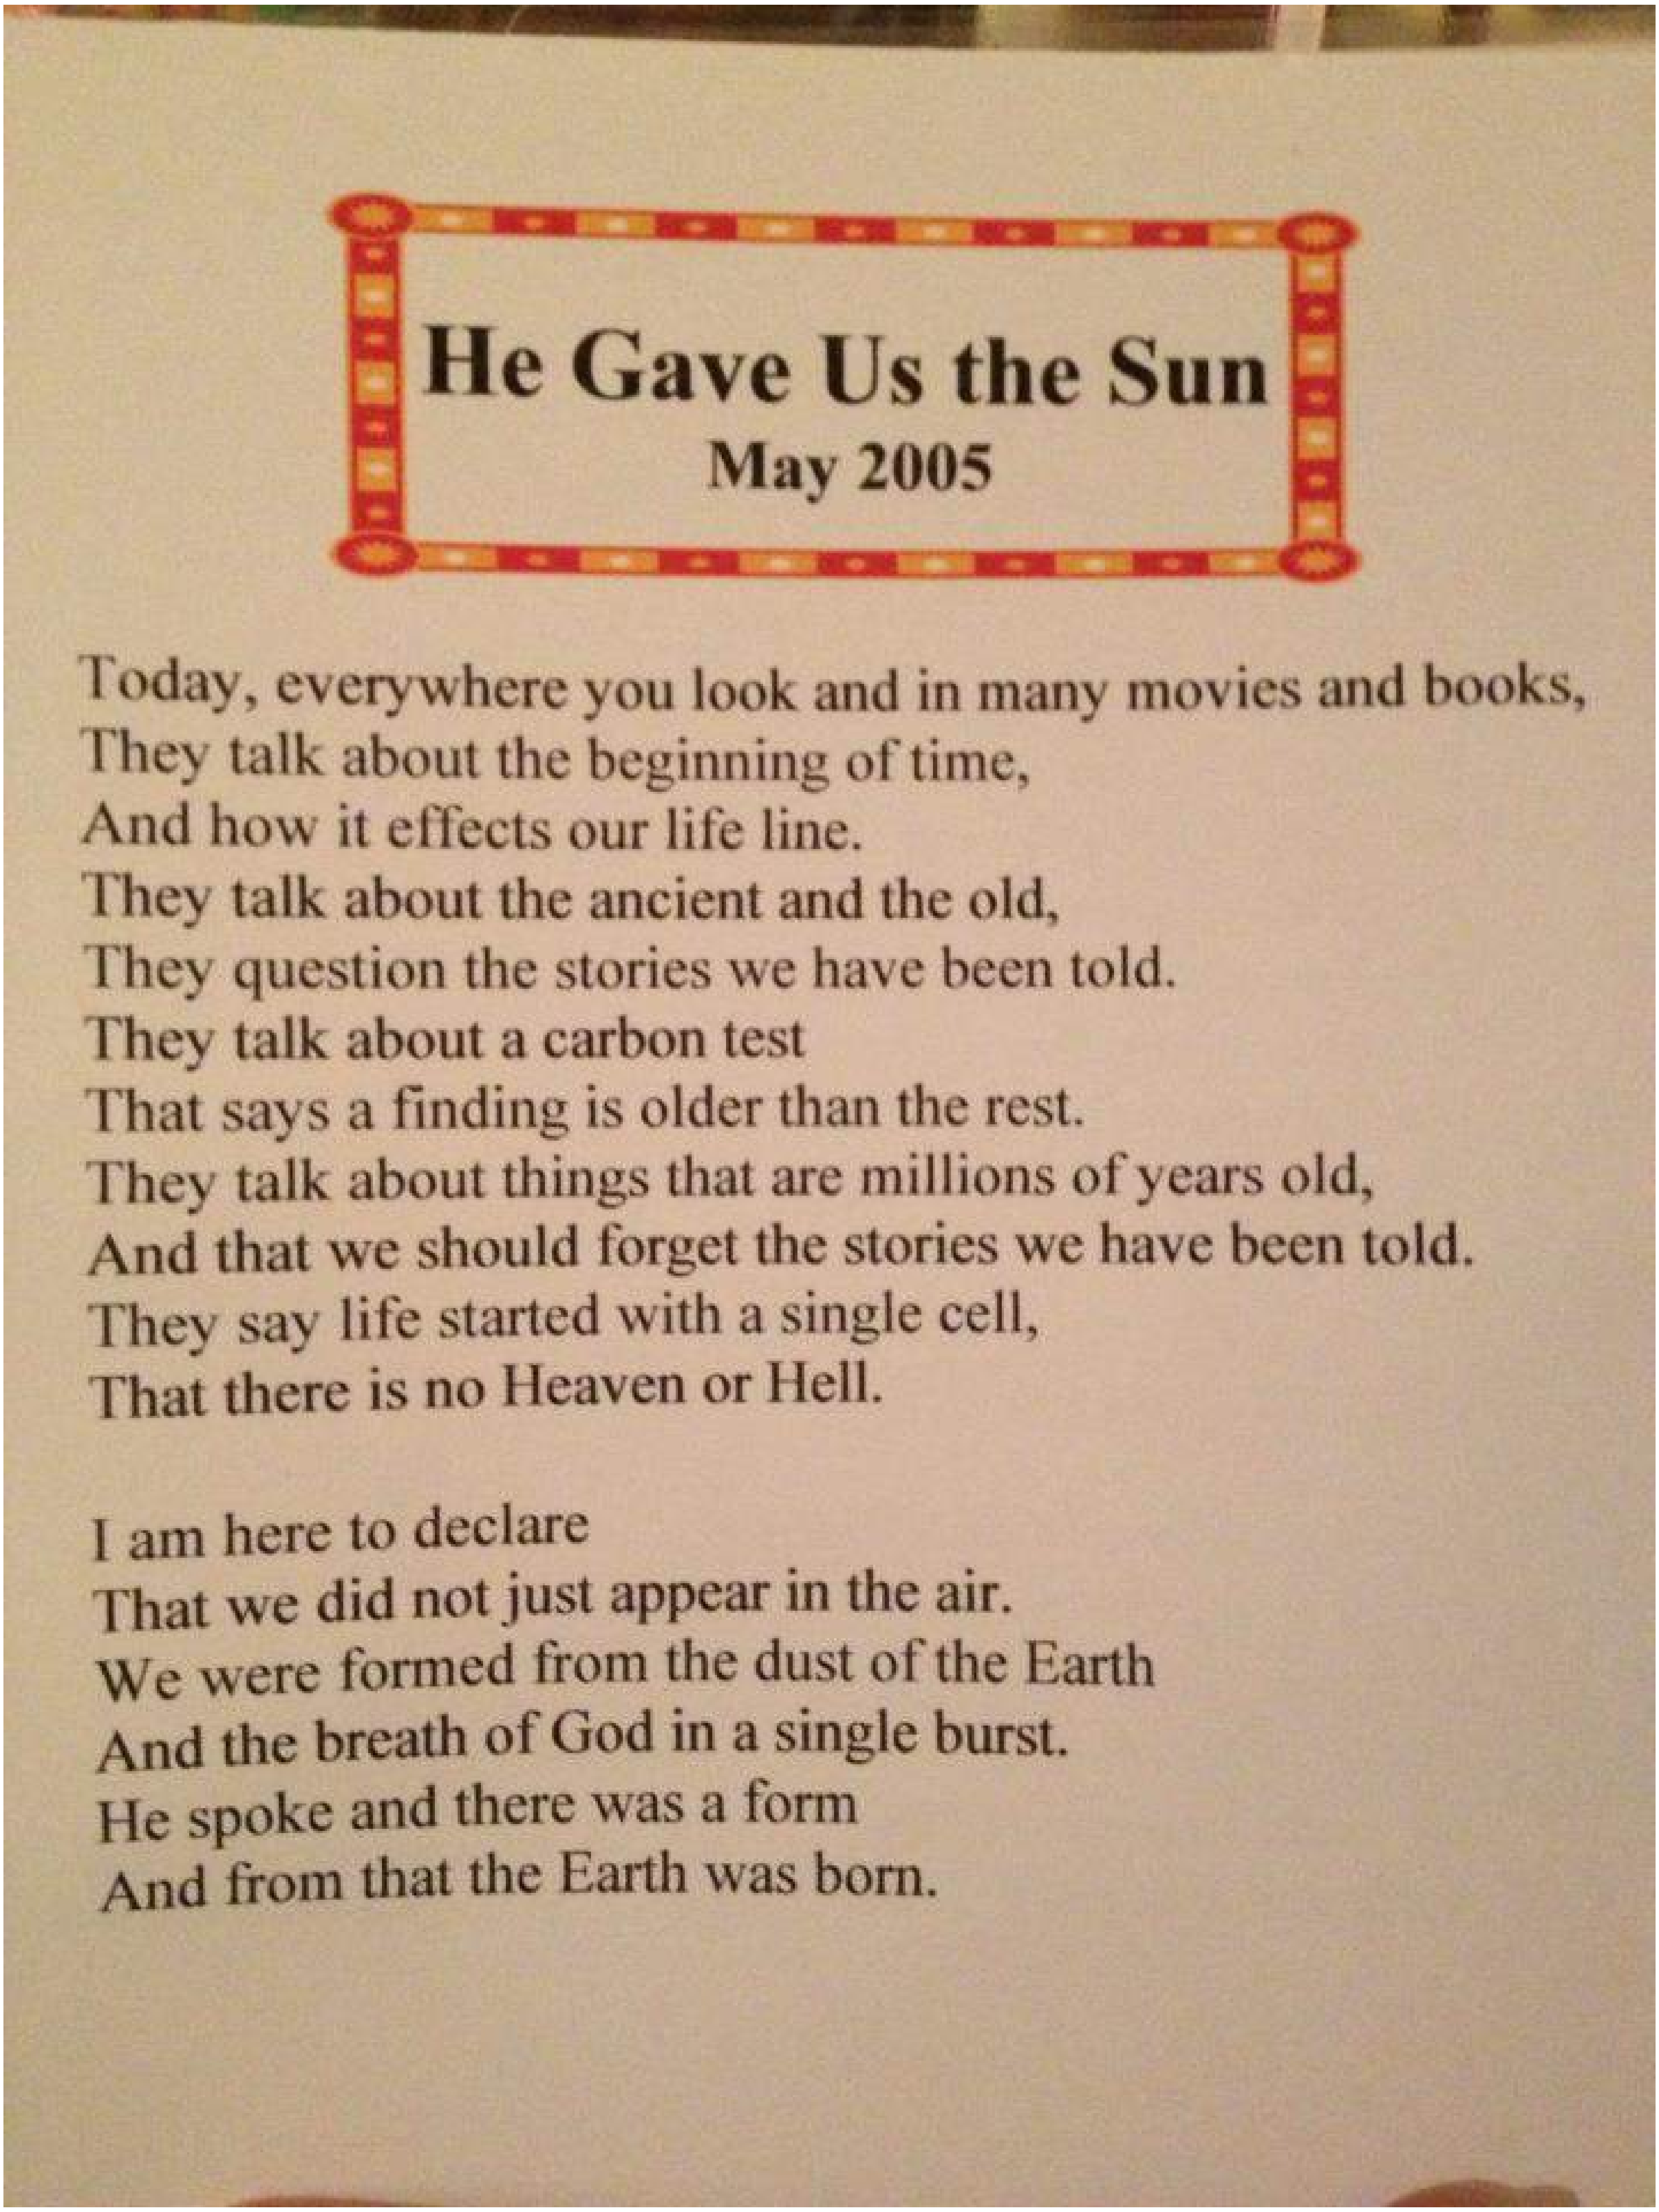
It was dark and grey
As if it was made of clay.
He spoke and said, "Let there be light"
So we could see day and night.

He spoke and gave us the sun
For our pleasure and our fun.
He hung it between the Heaven and Earth
So when it comes up it reminds us of a new birth.
The sun fit well within His plan
It had untold value to man.
He did things that only He could
And looked about and said it was good.

He gave us the sun to brighten our day,
He gave us the sun to show us the way.

Because of man's fall from grace
It was a very bleak future we faced.
Man needed to be redeemed,
And there was no one worthy it seemed.
We were helpless at best
Someone else must stand the test





He Gave Us the Sun

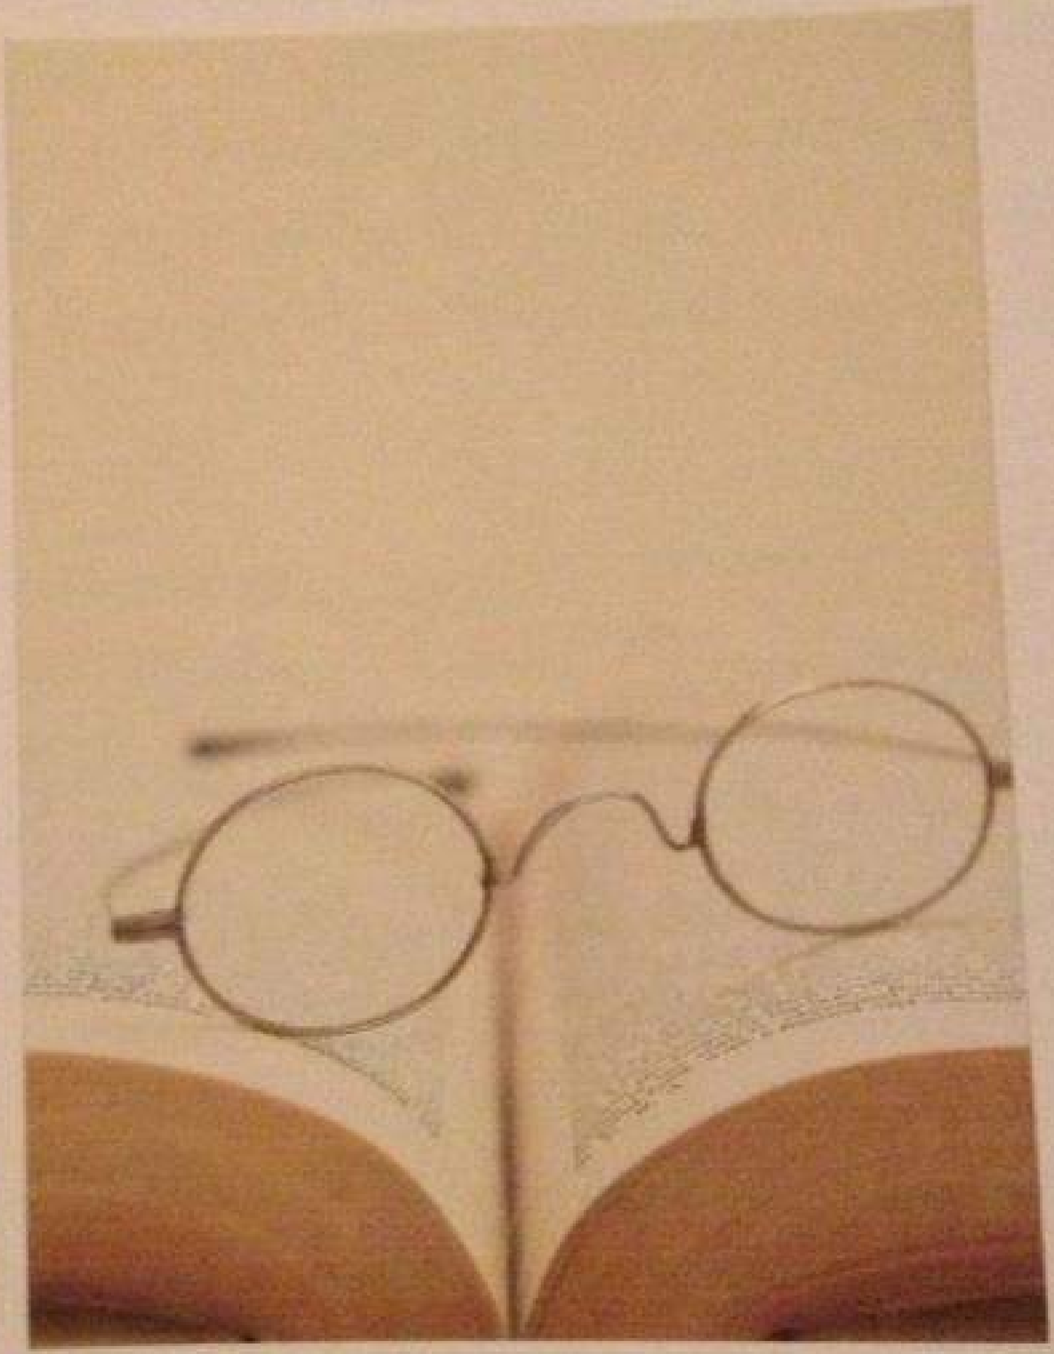
May 2005

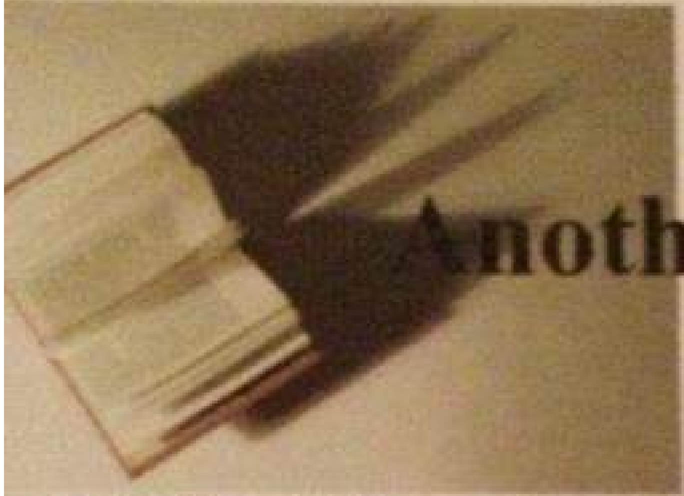
Today, everywhere you look and in many movies and books,
They talk about the beginning of time,
And how it effects our life line.
They talk about the ancient and the old,
They question the stories we have been told.
They talk about a carbon test
That says a finding is older than the rest.
They talk about things that are millions of years old,
And that we should forget the stories we have been told.
They say life started with a single cell,
That there is no Heaven or Hell.

I am here to declare
That we did not just appear in the air.
We were formed from the dust of the Earth
And the breath of God in a single burst.
He spoke and there was a form
And from that the Earth was born.

"What made you think of that." I said, "Watching the sunset." I came home, sat down, and wrote this.

Kim, here is one for the book.





Another One for the Book

May 2005

While sitting at lunch on 5/20/05, in Springfield, MO with Emma, my Granddaughter Kimberly Young, and her friend Stacey, Emma and Kim were kidding me about my inability to spell. They told Stacey, "He can't spell, but he can write! He just sits down and writes things." Kim mentioned she has a special book of things I have written, and said I had not written anything lately. Perhaps I would write something soon.

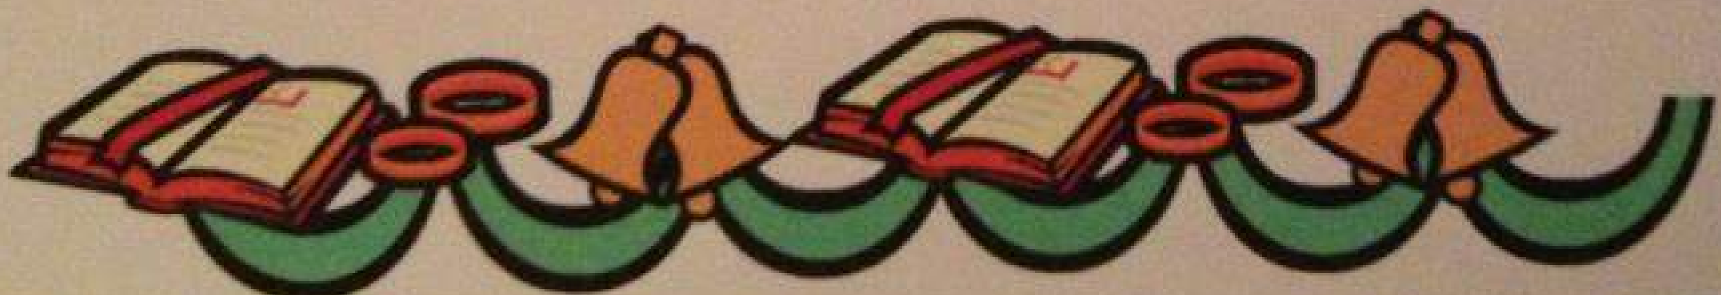
As Emma and I were driving home, I was watching the Sunset. I like watching the Sunset, as well as the beauty of the sun as it peeks over the mountain in the morning. I was thinking about all the songs that have been written about the sun—some about the sunrise, some about the sunset, and one called Sunrise, Sunset.

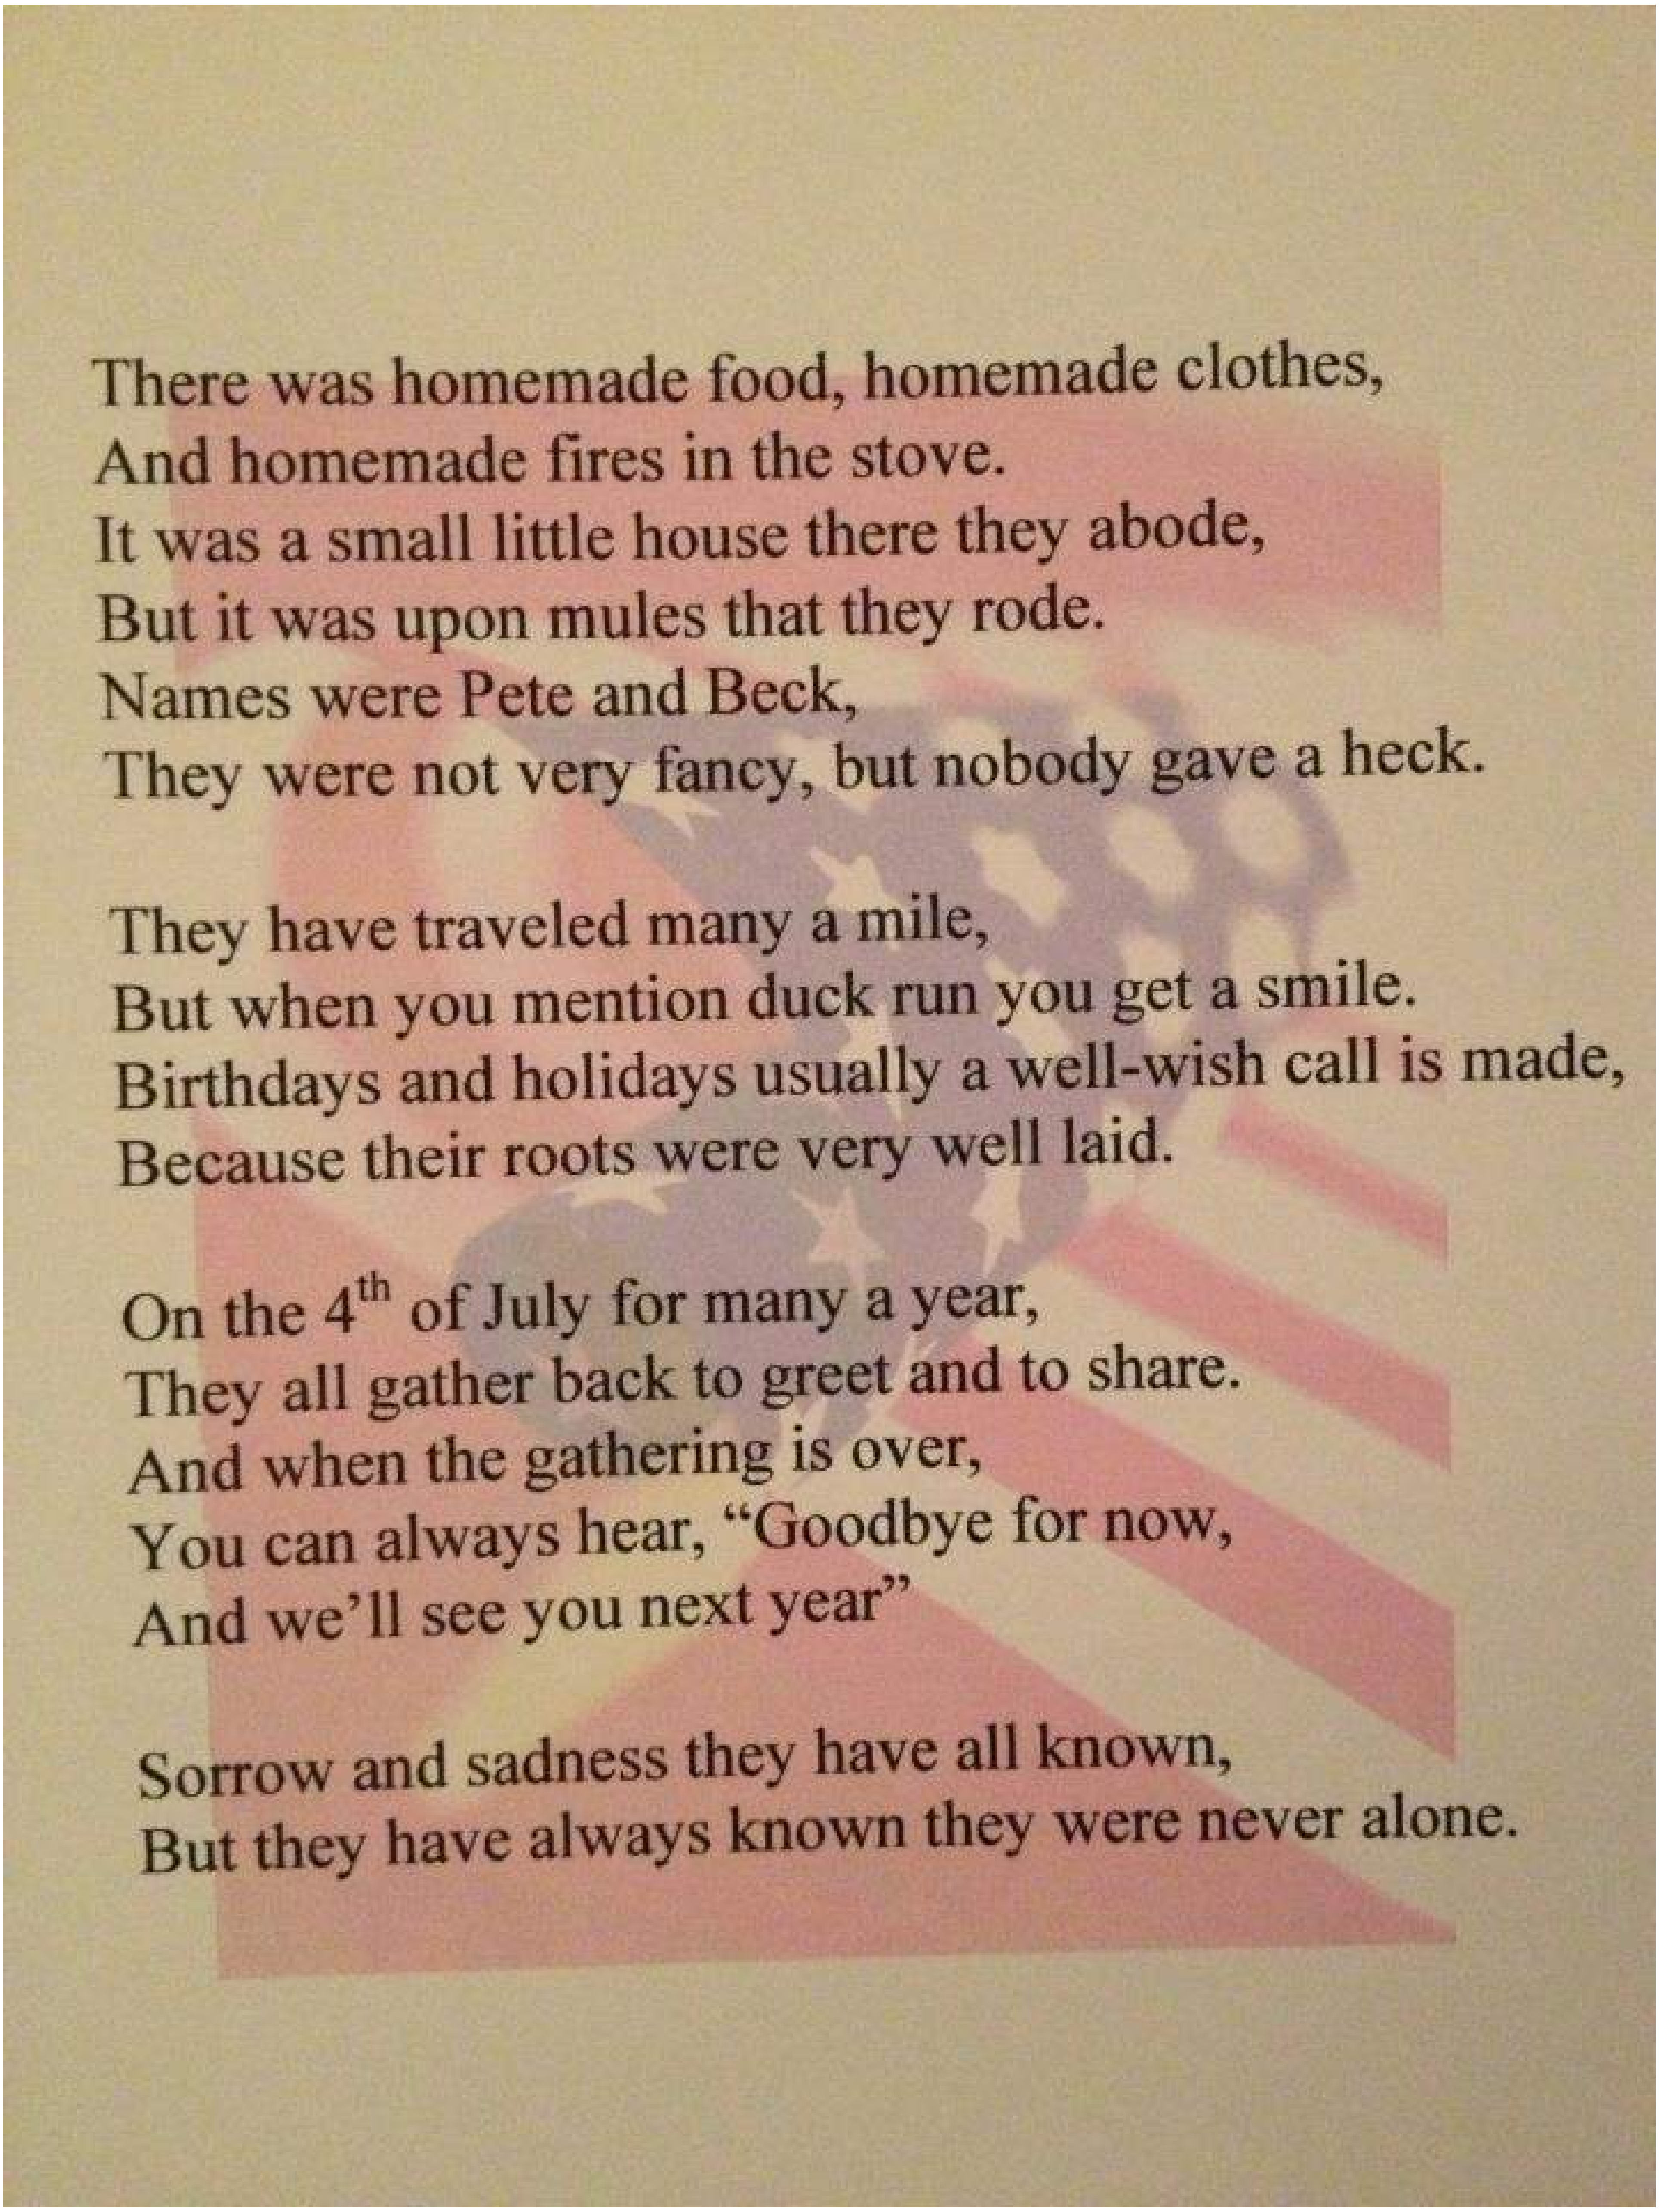
Emma looked over and said, "What are you thinking about." I said, "He gave us the sun. He gave us two." She said, I remember the good and the bad of a time past, but I remember and love you guys who came from the same past and all who have entered our lives since.

Those who laugh at our tales of walking over the bluff to catch the school bus . . . of climbing trees and riding them into other trees (traveling like Tarzan) . . . the corn cobb fights in the barn . . . the little one room school house where all eight grades were taught in one room with no dividers . . . the tolling of the bell when someone past away.

I remember most of all that Jesus is the reason for the season.

Well, to this day, once in awhile people gather with Donald Leemon and Emma and have a party of food, cake and sometimes punch. But Donald Leemon has never again lined up by a fence and yelled "Boo!"—to this day!





There was homemade food, homemade clothes,
And homemade fires in the stove.
It was a small little house there they abode,
But it was upon mules that they rode.
Names were Pete and Beck,
They were not very fancy, but nobody gave a heck.

They have traveled many a mile,
But when you mention duck run you get a smile.
Birthdays and holidays usually a well-wish call is made,
Because their roots were very well laid.

On the 4th of July for many a year,
They all gather back to greet and to share.
And when the gathering is over,
You can always hear, “Goodbye for now,
And we’ll see you next year”

Sorrow and sadness they have all known,
But they have always known they were never alone.

I Remember . . .

December 24, 2004

I remember fresh cut cedar trees wrapped in hand-strung popcorn rope with handmade paper ornaments and a special paper tree topper.

I remember oranges and chocolate drops and some hard mixed candy.

I remember an open fire place and a bucket of frozen water that had been carried from the spring around the hill still sitting in the kitchen.

I remember the feeding of the animals and the milking of the cow.

I remember the Christmas programs at the little country church.

Jones Family Reunion

December 2004

There once was a family named Jones,
Moss and Hila were their names.
They lived in the country all alone,
But they were happy just the same.

They were country people to the core,
And nine children are what they bore.
Six survived the conditions,
And grew up by the seat of their britches.

They went on to teach and preach and peddle their wares,
But they never forgot from whom they were heirs.
They now live in Kentucky, Ohio, Arkansas, Arizona and
West Virginia,
But at special times they go back to their beginning.

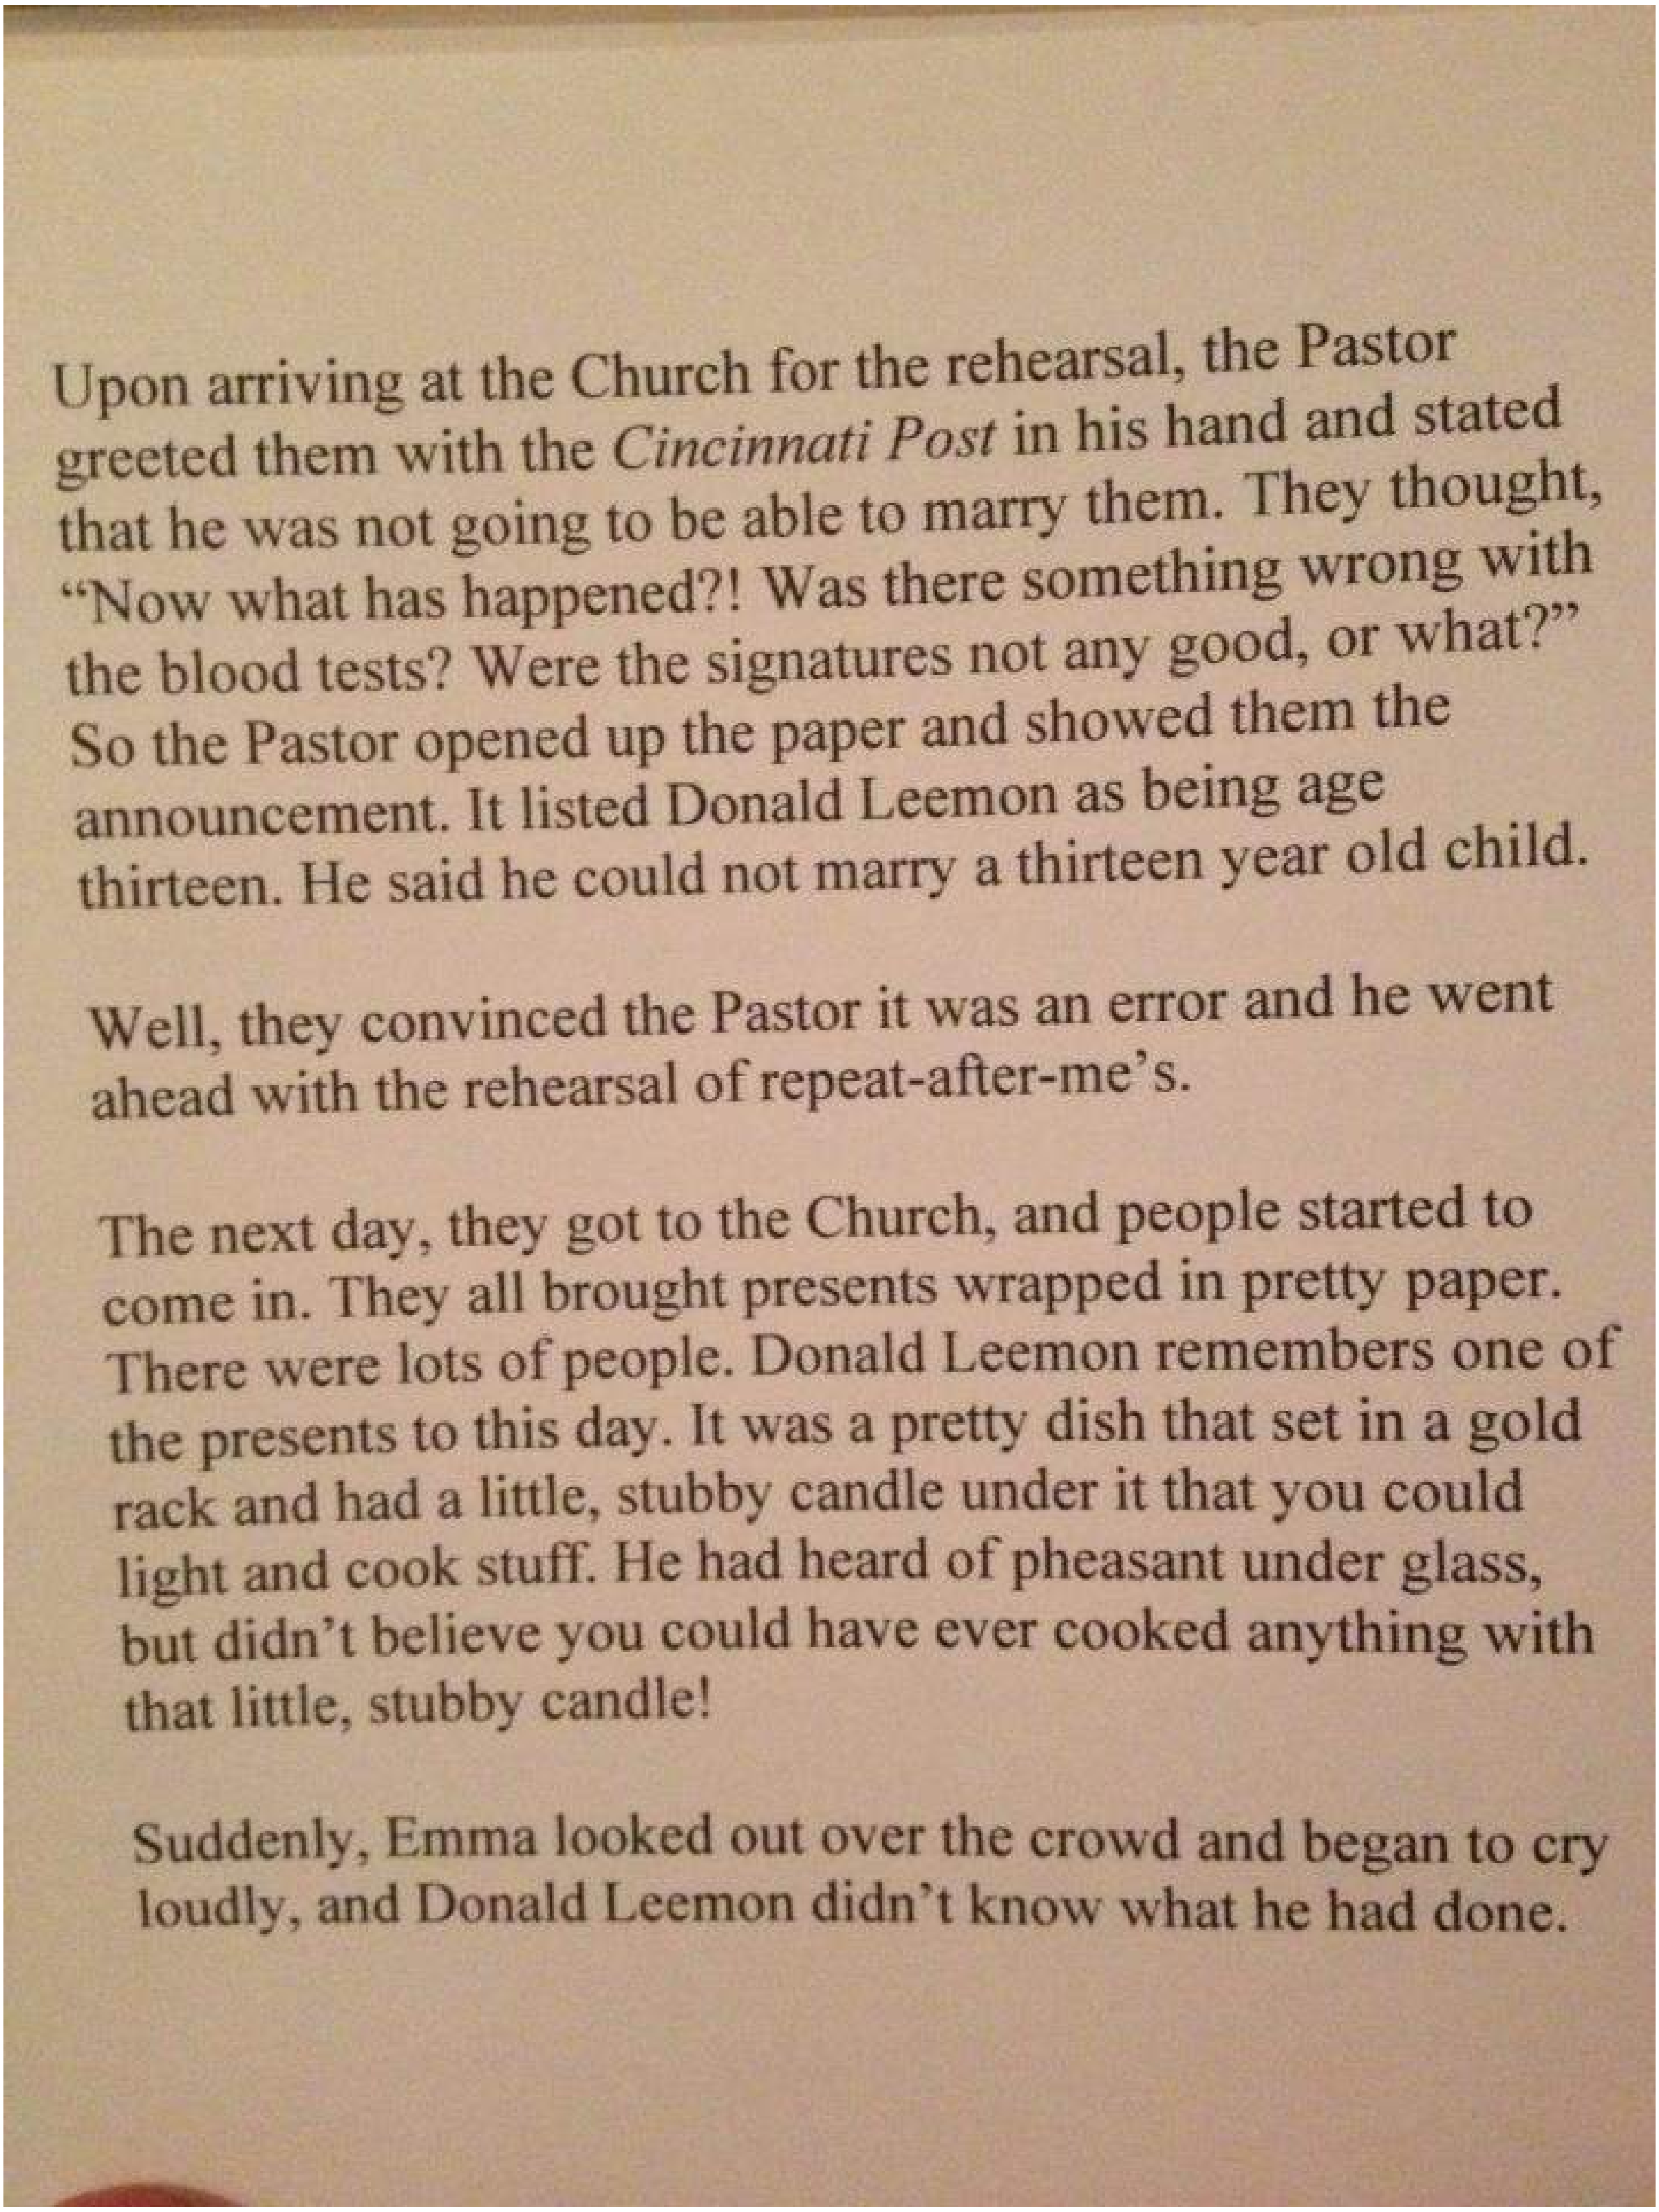
Weekend Party

March 4, 2004

This past weekend it was a real pleasure to have been with a lifetime of family and friends. The open house at Debbie and Don's was well attended. And the effort our family put into it was wonderful. The hardest part was our effort to try and spend some time with each one that came by, and I feel like we were here and there and everywhere. I certainly hope we did not miss anyone. The afternoon went quickly and with only a prayer we hope to see you all again, but not have to wait another 50 years!

The party then moved to our house, where about twenty-five people were able to sit down and eat together and tell stories or whatever they wanted to tell.

I once heard that the good Lord gives our relatives, but we get to pick our friends. Well, I thank Him that He gave me both and did real well by me.



Upon arriving at the Church for the rehearsal, the Pastor greeted them with the Cincinnati Post in his hand and stated that he was not going to be able to marry them. They thought, "Now what has happened?! Was there something wrong with the blood tests? Were the signatures not any good, or what?" So the Pastor opened up the paper and showed them the announcement.
